Police: Shopper assaulted mother, daughter in check-out line

VICTOR, N.Y. It's the time of year when a trip to the mall can turn into a contact sport.

That was the case at a mall outside Rochester, New York, where a woman is accused of assaulting two other people in a check-out line.

The Ontario County Sheriff's Department says the shopper flew into a rage after another woman bumped into her while waiting in line at a cash register.

Deputies say she grabbed a tape dispenser and hit a 63-year-old woman in the face, then kicked her several times. She's also accused of punching the woman's daughter when she tried to break up the fight, then hitting her in the face with a cell phone.

Then the woman reportedly screamed obscenities and fought with the deputy who arrested her.

The mother and daughter were treated at the scene by an ambulance crew.
